

Brainlink International Congratulates Official Launch of OfficeLinks On-demand Offices in Sears Tower

New York – Brainlink International congratulates OfficeLinks for its launching of state-of-the-art, on-demand offices in the Sears Tower, as a shared resource for start-up and multi-national companies that can reduce their office costs up to 60%.

The OfficeLinks center offers Polycom™ HD Videoconferencing with 22 kHz audio in StereoSurround,™ wireless connectivity, and a gigabit-speed network as well as a staffed reception area with full administrative service support for tenants and visitors.

"The current office space model is broken and we are fixing it. We are proud to offer Chicago businesses an array of flexible options that help companies save money and mitigate risks," stated Harsh Mehta, COO of OfficeLinks. "Companies will enjoy our modern, staffed offices equipped with the highest-quality IT infrastructure to support their business needs while benefiting from the ability to easily expand or contract their space."

Raj Goel, CEO Brainlink International says, "I appreciate Mr. Harsh Mehta & Mr. Paul Carter for their futuristic approach and for providing a flexible and cost-effective option to the companies in this recession." He continues, "We feel proud to be associated with OfficeLinks in designing of their state-of-the-art Data Center; enabling functional business continuity services, VMWare Virtualization and Zero-downtime IT management practices."

OfficeLinks has 100 offices and 241 workstations in 30,000 square feet in the Sears Tower. It also offers elegant designs, ecologically sustainable lighting and furniture, flat screen TVs, break out rooms and a pantry.
